administration

L. to R.: James Elbert, Principal; Thomas Grabill, Assistant Principal; Gary Drukemiller, Dean of Students.

The offices of the Assistant Principal and the Dean of Students had two new inhabitants this year, Thomas Grabill and Gary Drukemiller, respectively. They, along with our Principal, Mr. James Elbert, constitute the "Big Three" of Lowell High School. The roles of our administrators vary from assigning students to three days in directed study, to solving scheduling problems, to explaining our unique educational philosophy across the nation.

Mr. Elbert not only attempts to keep Lowell High functioning at its best, but also attemps to explain our educational system to many hundreds of visitors. When Mr. Elbert has nothing better to do, one may find him sitting in on classes, listening to complaining students, or even leading cheers in a pep session.

Through the nice work of a computer, a class could range in size from one student to thrity students. Mr. Grabill's most time consuming job was that of straightening out all such problems.

Mr. Drukemiller serves as disciplinarian, and mediator between student, teacher, and administration. The "Dean's" search for the best solution to problems has won him a rewarding reputation for fairness. The "Big Three" are alive and found in Lowell High School.

social studies

The Social Studies Department for the 1970-71 year was again under the direction of the Dean of Students, Mr. Drukemiller. Under his capable direction the department has adjusted itself both to the facility known as Lowell High School, and to the educational philosophy which it represents. Student oriented learning, in the form of class room discussion, has become a more integral part of the Social Studies Department than any other department in the entire school. The year also witnessed many new faces in the departmental faculty, and the addition of two new courses: Psychology II and Current Events. The desire for relevancy kept the department teachers constantly questioning, revising, and reorganizing their aims and objectives. This constant revision and questioning brought about new experiences for the students, such as: the Student Political Convention and the Student Congress.

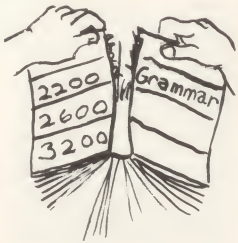

Air Force Jr. ROTC, in its second year at Lowell High School, has brought an added dimension to the Social Studies Department and to school activities as a whole. The course attempts to relate to the student knowledge of the United States Air Force and the customs of the military service.

The English Department is enjoying its first year of "togetherness" in many years. They are all scheduled into the area around the English Resource Center, and this has contributed to a more effective program. One of the newest innovations in the department has been the use of programmed grammar at freshman, sophomore, and junior levels that has enabled students to learn fundamentals of grammar at their own speed. Visitors pausing to listen at various classes have heard active discussions being led by students themselves on Billy Budd, The Scarlet Letter, Martian Chronicles, Romeo and Juliet, Siddhartha, The Pearl, Canterbury Tales, and many other classic and contemporary works. Reaction to the classes by the students themselves have ranged from "I hate English" to "English is my favorite class". All in all, the English Dept. has had great success with their new program.

The Science and Math Department is a unit in name only as both groups operate autonomously under Mr. Grabill. The science division is one of the stablest groups in the school, moving steadily forward toward new goals while avoiding the pitfalls of rapid change. Already, the open lab concept is an integral part of the science curriculum and, with the adoption of new texts this year, more is being done with process oriented and group discovery method. In keeping with the ideals of the inductive method, our resident scientists emphasize depth rather than breadth in curriculum planning. In contrast to science's resolute growth, the Math Department has attempted several daring programs in an attempt to provide our math students with the best possible program. Because of the individualistic nature of the math personnel, the innovations of the Math Department have been varied and interesting. As one might predict, with this type of highly experimental program, everything has not been peaches and cream; there have been some failures along with the triumphs. The math people are now beginning to investigate the fields of practical mathematics and statistics and probabilities with an eye to providing for the heeds of more students at more levels of interest and ability.

L. R.: Elaine Bever, Mr. Earnest, Lee Perry, and Arline Vandermark.

A not uncommon occurance during the school day is the sight of an obviously disturbed student rushing up the south stairs, past the administrative offices, and into the guidance office, for it is here that students take their problems. The personnel in this office is trained to handle every sort of perplexity from cross sectioning, to dropping out, to personal problems, to the tears of a young lady. The Guidance Department is the haven of the worried and distraught. It is the center of schedule conflicts; it is a sounding board for students who have "had it" with a teacher. Here there is sympathy and understanding and a solution. But the guidance office is much more than the crying towel of the school; it handles testing and record keeping for the staff. It is in this small office that teachers may go to find out more about the students. Discussion of problems by counselors and teachers leads many times to a better classroom situation for both the teacher and the student. It is through the guidance program also that students with special needs and abilities may find suitable programs and opportunities through special education programs and information on post-high school education. The guidance office, then, is the "parent" of the student services.

Wendall Frederick and Loranna Walton

This year, the foreign language department, now accustomed to the new facilities, is improving on past teaching methods. Many additions and corrections have taken place, and an improvement in the department is obvious.

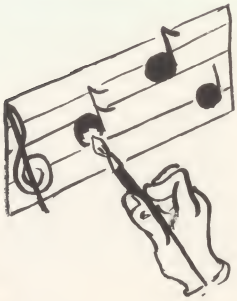

Laurie Guillon, a French girl who has lived in the United States since she was age nine, joined the French IV class for the second semester. Mrs. Claudine Paluzzi, the artist in residence, demonstrated in class, free-form plaster of paris sculpture, while Mrs. Walton gave instructions in French.

The Spanish, French, and Latin classes progress through the years at the following rate: Levil I—learning basic fundamentals, Level II—improving on what was learned in Level I, Level III—reading stories, and Level IV—independent study and advanced reading. In the future years of language study, the student will certainly benefit from the detailed instruction they have received this year.

L. to R.: James Crane, Wendall Frederick, Robert Ray, and Claudine Paluzzi.

Expressing one's individuality is one of the most important achievements of the Fine Arts Department. A student is able to find the area in which he is most interested and talented in through the fine art's courses that are offered. The choir, band, and art classes' main objective is to develop an appreciation of fine arts in each individual student. This year Lowell High School had the privilege of being one of two schools in the state to have an artist-in-residence. The art students had the opportunity of observing the artist, Mrs. Claudine Paluzzi, at work in the art room. The needs of each student in art are met through open labs, sketchbook assignments, or class projects. The choir and band keep themselves busy with such extracurricular activities as school musicals and concerts. The band, and our new band director, Mr. Crane, are to be commended on their fine job this past year. Under Mr. Crane's direction many students have placed very well in the many band contests that have been entered. The personal pride and enthusiasm that the Fine Art's Department develops in the student prepares him for entrance into the adult world.

L. to R.: Marva Barrett, Robert Miller, George Ham, and Nancy Reyes.

The Business Department has vastly grown since moving to the new high school. Through the use of many new machines and new teaching methods, the students have been given a better opportunity to learn business courses that will aid them in the business field. The students may take a course such as personal typing in which they learn the fundamentals of typing for their personal use, or the students may take a course that will prepare them for a job in the business area. Last year a new concept in teaching was developed in the Business department—the Intensive Lab—which trains girls in actual secretarial work. This year the department has witnessed the tremendous value of this on-the-job course as the girls trained in Lowell High School's Intensive Lab are getting well-paying jobs as secretaries. Team teaching allows the business department to teach more people, and recorded lessons allow the teachers to give each student more individual help. The office machines course use reproducing machines such as mimeograph, spirit duplication, collators, joggers, and other machines used for preparing tests. The Business department is an important part of any high school because it trains students in many of the fundamentals of the business area.

industrial education

When Mr. Kalbac was asked about the Industrial Education Department, that he chairmans, he replied; "In great contrast to the meager industrial arts facility of yesterday, today, we are equipped and organized with shops that were uniquely planned for Lowell. Each week has shown evidence of new growth and dimension in the program; we are increasingly more positive that our vision for the future was well founded. "Motivation", which use to be a lecture by the instructor, is now the word for what happens to a student as he begins to recognize the potential of the shop equipment, the staff, and his own interests, abilities, and attitudes."

The Industrial Education staff has favorite, and accurate descriptions of our shop program. We believe it to be comprehensive, and we encourage a cross-section of students. We endorse activities that are real; we are not impressed with pretend kinds of assignments. We believe in assignments which vary in depth as determined by the student. We make a very conscientious effort to match the activities of the courses with the personality, interest, and ability of each student."

physical education

L. to R.: Donna Lukes, Frank O'Shea, Susan Thompson, and Michael Sullivan.

With the new facilities and the many different areas covered in the physical education program, the student has an excellent opportunity to increase his ability and skill. The course may cover anything from swimming to gymnastics in any given six weeks.

The required P.E. classes offer the freshmen and the sophomores a break from the regular school day. Offered again this year, for the interested junior and senior, was the "Individual and Dual Sports" class. This co-ed course is for the upperclassman who is interested in the many sports activities it has to offer. These classes could be found in a bowling alley, ice skating at Evergreen Pond, or outside playing archery.

The Physical Education program allows an individual to gain knowledge of the fundamentals of a sport and then through practice, gain skill. Sportmanship, self-control, co-operation, and leadership are a few attributes hopefully gained through the P.E. program.

Vocational Agriculture is a course developed primarily for the student interested in pursuing agriculture as a profession. A four year course is offered which is designed to confront the student with practical farm situations. One of the new projects the Agriculture Department is undertaking is the construction of the greenhouse which is being built and financed by the F.F.A. With the growth of the agriculture facilities, the department is capable of producing individuals who are more skilled in the field of agriculture.

The attractiveness of the facilities of the Home Economics Department has been a big factor in the increase in enrollment this year. The courses of study included in the Home Economics curriculum are now on a semester basis. With this change, it is hoped that more students will be able to select the subject areas they are most interested in. All students are encouraged to enroll in the department, whether or not they are interested in becoming a homemaker, a teacher, a journalist, an interior decorator or a host of other courses. The Home Economics Department has a course that will benefit the students in their future endeavors.

The 1971 staff felt it appropriate that some recognition be given to the janitors and cooks of Lowell High School. These people perform many of the roles that our mothers perform throughout the day. The cooks are found either slaving over a hot stove, or serving students in the lunch line. The janitors wage a constant battle against litter and disorder, and are always cleaning and picking up after students. A big "Thank You" goes out to these individuals for their efforts.

L. to R. Inell Busselberg, Grace Wooldridge, Norma Sark, and Doris Curless.

If one should happen to casually wander upstairs to the mezzanine, whether invited or not, one is sure to come in contact with one or more of the four secretaries which inhabit the area. Two of these secretaries, Mrs. Curless and Mrs. Bisselberg, are found in the main office and attendence office, respectively. When Mrs. Curless and Mrs. Bisselberg are not listening to complaining students, answering numerous questions, or baby-sitting with individuals who, whether they desire or not, are waiting to see the "Dean," they perform their regular secretarial duties, such as; typing and answering the telephone. Found in and around the Bookkeeping Office, is Mrs. Woolridge. It is due to her diligent efforts that High School clubs and organizations have any balanced record at all. Mrs. Sark is secretary to the three guidance counselors. It is her job to schedule student appointments with the couselors, and help seniors who know they want to go to school, but just do not know where. These four ladies are a distinct aspect of Lowell High School and they should be noted for the exceptional work that each of them performs.

L. to R., Sandra Daley, Kay Sampson, Jeanette Fairchild, Audrey Stephan, and Virginia Kasparian.

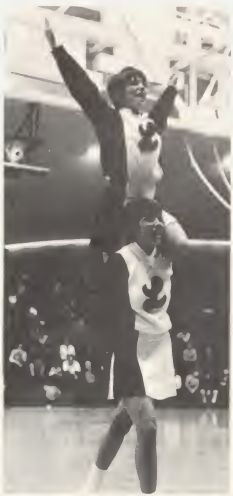

The teacher aids this year have proven to be very valuable. In case these faces are unfamiliar, one may locate these ladies in the three resource centers, the library, and the book store. Our aids give and correct tests, record grades, file tests, ditto papers, as well as work in the cafeteria during noon hours. The aid's main purpose is to relieve the teacher from the time consuming job of correcting tests, allowing him more free time to help his students. Mrs. Daley, located in the Math Resource center, works for the math and social studies teachers. Mrs. Fairchild, our science teachers' aid, administers tests, and generally helps the science teacher with what needs to be done. Mrs. Kasparian "lives" in the English Resource Center. She passes out tests for the programmed learning books needed by the student. The student book store is run by Mrs. Sampson. Her jobs vary from selling school supplies and game tickets to that of keeping track of the inmates in jail. Mrs. Stephens is our librarian's assistant. She is found in the production room doing many various jobs. The teacher's aids are a necessity to the functioning of the various departments in Lowell High School.

Varsity cheerleading is not as glamorous as it may seem to those who sit in the stands. It is a year 'round job continuing through the summer months. The girls prepare for the oncoming sports season by attending a cheerleading camp during the month of July.

Cheerleading is hard work and an effort. Sometimes our cheerleaders are rewarded by being told that they are lousy or by being the only ones yelling at a pep session. This year's cheerleaders did their best to reawaken the dying enthusiasm of the student body.

spirit through leadership

Our four J.V. cheerleaders, through the season, displayed much enthusiasm in encouraging the Devils to do their best. Their spirit and pride were exhibited as they perfected their cheers and mounts.

During the year our Freshman cheerleaders learned the meanings of sportsmanship and responsibility, which are true qualities of a good cheerleader. These girls proved to be fine examples of L.H.S. school spirit.

"big red" in action

The 1970-71 Varsity Squad lacked size and experience, but made up for this lack with desire and determination. Being a youthful team, the Devils started three sophomores in the offensive backfield, and one sophomore in the line. Our 3—7 record this season was somewhat deceiving. The team and many Lowell fans will certainly agree that we beat Crown Point every place but on the scoreboard. The Griffith and Hammond Tech games were within our grasp, but they slipped away in the final seconds.

The victorious highlights of the season had to be our 15—12 victory over Merrillville, and our 14—0 Homecoming victory over Calumet.

The team worked hard and had fun doing it. There were times when the team Mickey Milakovic needed a mud bath, and the coaches needed showers. Quoting from a senior team member, "With a guy like Charlie Drewry around, there was never a dull moment."

With sixteen returning lettermen next year, the future outlook is a bright one. Many juniors and sophomores gained experience this year which will give them the rank of seasoned veterans for the next season. There is also some material from this year's freshman squad that will possibly be seeing varsity action next year.

Our Freshman football team opened their season on September 16 with a victory over a small Hanover Central team. Munster was our next opponent on the 23rd and was agressive, capitalizing on the Devil's mistakes causing our defeat. We proved to be no match for the fired up Panthers from Griffith, as we were defeated 29—0. The Pirates of Merrillville proved to be our most frustrating opponent. We moved the ball at will, but fumbled and lost it four times within 15 yards. Hard defensive plays key-noted our 8—0 victory over the Taft Tigers. Our last ball game found only 22 boys dressed, but we played a spirited game and held off a very good Lake Central team until the last seconds of the game when they grabbed a 16—8 victory. Overall, the season was not what we had hoped, but because of the spirit and determination that was evident during the last few ball games, we feel that some fine varsity material will make itself known within the next two years.

Twelve fine, spirited runners represented Lowell in the Cross Country meets during the fall of 1970. Our two Seniors, Bill Gunn and Jim Stuart were the co-Captains of the team. Eight Juniors and two Freshmen completed the squad. John Kepshire and Jeff Gunning teamed up as managers to keep things going.

The season opened with two meets on Lowell's new home course. The course was still a little rough and the distance uncertain, but its length was close to two miles.

Early in the fall, sprained ankles and other problems interrupted the season for several runners the team had been depending on. Although the absence of these runners hurt the team, younger runners gained much experience which will prove to be valuable next season. Beep . . . Beep!

The 1970-71 basketball season is over and it is now time for a review of the great season. As everyone knows, our record this year was not the best, but we lost several very close games, which undoubtly tortured the loyal fans.

The team was full of surprises this year. They were a very unpredictable group which kept the fans guessing and wondering as to what was going to happen next. For instance, every game the star for the Devils was always a different player. The high scorer might be Reed or Schuttz or Schoon or Gunn, but it was never the same person twice in a row. This shows great team balance and unselfishness, which were the team's main virtues through most of the season.

Basketball practices were always loads of fun. It sure was fun to run for five minutes and work on defense moves. Actually, there is no doubt in anybody's mind that all the work paid off. Our victories were gained through stamina and guts and some of our losses would have been much worse if we had not been prepared to play a full thirty-two minutes. The practices had their lighter moments, too. The antics of that great comedy team of Broadwater and Steiner had the team howling and the coach gnashing his teeth. Then there were the shooting contests, from three-quarters court, that had the coach climbing the walls. The team was greatly inspired by the curses and impreciations flung at them by both coaches and fans.

Yes, it was quite a year. Lowell High School may not have had the biggest or the best basketball team, but they did have the guts. To Lowell High School Senior team members we say good-bye, to the underclassmen we say good luck next year.

Lowell High's 1970-71 Junior Varsity Basketball squad opened its season with four straight loses. In their fifth encounter, though, they proved to their fans that they had what it took to be a victor. In addition to this victory, the J.V. roundballers only managed five wins in contrast to their twelve defeats. Two facts, though, which give basketball followers confidence in next year's Varsity squad are the presence of a few individual standouts, and the fact that the team won three out of its last four games.

Winning 1st place in the Freshman Holiday Tourney had to be the highlight for this year's Frosh. squad. Beating South Newton, our boy's gained the chance to meet Kankakee Valley in the finale game. A proud victory along with a trophy was the outcome of the game. Not only at the Holiday Tourney but all through the season, the team proved themselves to be a fine ball club. Lowell will be looking forward to seeing these boys in Future L.H.S. basketball play.

When asked about the 1970-71 Wrestling team's season, Coach Hurst replied, "Despite a losing season, the Varsity Wrestling team steadily improved as the season progressed. This year's team was hampered primarily by inexperienced underclassmen. The team was small in number, giving us little depth. However, this small number of participants did not dampen their spirit, nor their competitiveness.

The bright spots of the season were the wins over Crown Point and Hanover Central. The stars of this year's season were, John Yankauskas' first place finish at Valparaiso, and second place finish in the conference; Paul Thomas' first place finish at Valparaiso; Randy Purkey's second place finish at Valparaiso, and third place finish in the conference; Charley Drewry's third place finish in sectionals; Don Dwyn's first place finish at Valparaiso, and third place in the conference. The brightest star this year was Mike Sharkey's conference championship, and runner-up in sectionals.

Next year's Varsity squad shows promise with the help of Ralph Ballou at 98 lbs., Dane Schuyler at 119, John Sheets at 138 and Len Anglis at 155. In the final analysis, the team gained the much needed experience which characterizes a future champion.

Gymnastics has aptly been called "the builder of bodies and the molder of men." It is a sport requiring much individual effort, great determination, and individual discipline. In gymnastics a man competes, not so much against another, but against himself. Each time a gymnast mounts a piece of apparatus, he competes his prior performance, trying to better himself rather than to beat an opponent. Gymnastic routines, composed of balances, strength, and flexibility, are judged on the basis of difficulty, composition, and form.

In the sectional meet, Lowell had several high places. Dean Hoover and Tom Howard tied for 11th on Side Horse, Jeff Hobbs, team captain, placed 11th on Still Rings, Tom Milich got 9th in all-Around, Steve Jenson placed 7th on Parallel Bars and Glen Walters placed 5th on Rings, thus becoming the first Lowell gymnast to qualify to compete in State Final competition.

Although this year's team did not have a winning record, they did have a successful season, considering that this is only our 2nd year for gymnastics. The gymnasts put together routines of increasing difficulty, and have developed the all important "style."

The Lowell High School swimming team finished their second season with a record of five wins and eight losses. Despite the record, this was a successful season considering this was only the second season that Lowell High School has had a swimming team. The core of this year's team was made up of sophomores who gained experience which will prove valuable to strengthening the team in future seasons.

The swimming team showed their strength this year by setting many new shcool records. This was due to the placement of the boys in the events in which they excelled. The new records set are as follows: Stan McLellan in the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard freestyle; John Lappie in the 50-yard freestyle; Mike Ogle in the 200-yard freestyle and the 100-yard butterfly; Dan Clark in the 100-yard backstroke; Paul Smith in the 400-yard freestyle; and Kim Krupa in the 100-yard breaststroke. We will be looking forward to their fine performances in the coming seasons.

The outlook was a bright one for the Lowell Red Devil Hardballers at the beginning of the season. The first four outings provided an optimistic view for fans as LHS notched four straight victories. As the season progressed though, the combination of good hitting and good pitching, the key to winning games, never materialized. The team had its ups and downs and it seemed as though they could never get together.

Under the new leadership of Coach Reyes, the youthful team compiled a successful 6—3 non-conference record. The conference record left a little to be desired. With only four seniors on the team, the underclassmen gained much experience and should bring good potential to next year's squad. At the finish of the season, a barbecue was held at Evergreen Park for the team. Coach Reyes passed out awards to: Kendall Reed, most valuable pitcher; Randy Hile, player with the highest hitting percentage; and Charlie Drewry, most valuable player.

Look out for the Red Devil Hardballers next year for they are going to be on the ball!

The most interesting thing about the J.V. Baseball team is its youthfulness. Most J.V. Baseball teams consist of boys in grades 10—12. Our team uses boys from grades 9—12. Therefore, their record is not an indication of their capabilities on the baseball diamond.

Next year's J.V. Baseball team will hopefully use their extra year of experience to perform on an equal footing with other teams. The following players have displayed outstanding potential on the field: Mark Allie, Terry Brownell, Larry Workman, Bob Kronsel, Barry Van Duerson, Don Haberlin, Mike Uhter, Doug Hales, John Bruckman, and Dan Huseman. LHS baseball fans hope these boys will form the nucleus of next year's varsity squad.

Okay, group, listen to a tale of sweat, blood, and tears, of pain and muscle pulls. You shall read of the ecstasy of triumph, the agony of defeat, the sweet taste of victory, and a lot of other rot. I am referring, of course, to the Lowell High track team.

The team had several moments of glory. We finished second at the South Newton Relays and third at the Griffith Relays. Three school records were set: Ralph Midkiff pole vaulted 11'6", Bob Little ran the mile in 4:31.2, and the 880 relay team of John Sheets, Jeff Mayer, Kevin Molchan, and Steve Jensen ran a 1:34.9 in the sectionals.

We may have lacked experience, but we made up for it in exuberance. Many a time the opposing team was psyched out by our famous soul handclap and our cool warmup routine. (Unfortunately, those teams usually recovered in time to win the meet.) Practices always started out with the thinclads full of vim and vigor, eager to work their tails off for dear ol' LHS. Of course, this mood was usually gone in five minutes, but it was great while it lasted.

All in all, it was a great year, if you don't mention the stick relay, and the two-mile relay at Griffith, and the conference meet at Gilroy, and the broken hurdles, and the lost shoes, and . . .

Golf clubs . . . golf balls . . . tees . . . golfers . . . South Shore . . . and everything else. Coach Ford, our fearful, faithful leader once again led our golfers into another season to face their opponents. The 1971 golfers had all the necessary items for a good golf team, yet somehow they could not fit everything together and come up as a winning team. The reason for our team's not-so-hot season had to be bad luck. The boys practiced hard everyday at South Shore Golf Course and other places. On November 20th and 21st, the Thespian Society produced the All School play entitled, "The Mousetrap." The play was the first of its kind at Lowell High School as it was a dramatic murder mystery. "once upon a mattress"

The choir outdid itself this year with their production of "Once Upon a Mattress." The play, based on the tale of "The Princess and the Pea," told of a young prince, played by Dean Hoover, and his efforts to find a wife. The prince found many girls he would like to marry, yet none could pass the tests of his overdominant mother. As it turns out, the least likely of all the princesses of the kingdom is the only one to pass the test.

Every member of the cast did an excellent job performing and singing his part. The Lowell High School choir should be proud of their fine job and they deserve many congratulations.

Friday proved to be a clear but cold day. While the temperatures were dropping, the spirits were rising. Friday evening cars and floats were assembled on Castle Street. The clubs and classes showed fine participation with the FFA capturing first place. When the mass confusion calmed down, the parade was led through town by our Marching Red Devils to the football field.

As the game progressed, the Devils never stopped moving. It was too cold to stop! The Calument Warriors were scalped 13 to 6 by a fired up Devil Team.

The 1970 Homecoming Game will always be remembered as a sweet victory, a radiant Queen and frozen toes.

Who cried the most, Luan or Debbie? Below: During the pep session Friday afternoon, Terry Moore was crowned the Homecoming King. "I don't deserve it" were the modest words spoken by Terry. Whatcha lookin' at Terry?

A busy week of spirited activities came to a close on Friday afternoon as Terry Moore was crowned Powder Puff King during the special Homecoming Pep Session. The crowning of royalty was not ended here though. Homecoming halftime was only a few hours away.

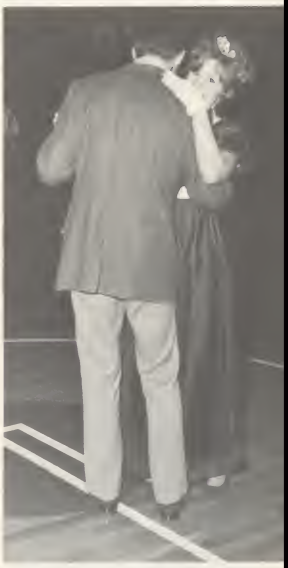

As the Red Devils came running off the field at the end of the second quarter, four shivering nervous Senior girls waited anxiously for the moment they had anticipated all Spirit Week—the coronation of the Homecoming Queen.

Finally the moment arrived! And amid the cheers, the excitement, and happy tears, Debbie Steuer was crowned Lowell's Homecoming Queen for 1970-71!

Radiant Queen Debbie reigned over the first Homecoming Dane to be held in the new gym. The court and their escorts were: Seniors; Susie Echterling and Kendall Reed, Nancy Lucas and Mike Kelley, Luan Perzo and Rick Brown, Juniors; Pam Herr and Bob Shipley, Joann Hoffman and Leonard Anglis, Sophomores; Mary Yankauskas and Dale Kersey, and Freshmen Janet Hoffman and Barry Belstra.

Lowell High School received its first taste of artistry in the form of one Claudine Paluzzi. Mrs. Paluzzi came to Lowell to enrich Lowell students in the cultural area of art, and to be the main object of our curious observation. The state of Indiana kindly sent Mrs. Paluzzi to us through the artist-in-residence program.

Canvases, sculptures, paint, plus all kinds of very weird objects became a part of the artroom once Mrs. Paluzzi arrived in Lowell to work at her craft. Mrs. Paluzzi made herself available for presentations in classes other than art, so all students of Lowell had many opportunities to benefit from Mrs. Paluzzi's presence.

Nine girls sought the title of Lowell's Jr. Miss on November 27, 1970. The girls were judged on their talent, scholarship, physical fittness, poise, appearance, and the judges' conference. The candidates proved to be very talented with Debbie Steuer paintomiming to "Hey Big Spender", Beth Piske performing a self-composed comedy skit, Judy Kocsis scaring the audience with her dangerous stunts on the uneven parallel bars, and Pat Black performing on the balance beam, which led her to become first runner up. Nancy Brown sang "Hey Little Girl" and Cheri Abraham sang "Easy to be Hard." Luan Perzo comically pantomimed "Casey at the Bat," Bonnie Wells danced to "Soul Street Strut," and Janet Coates displayed her sewing talents by singing, "I Can Sew a Rainbow". Janet won the Miss Congeniality Award and also the title of Lowell's Jr. Miss for 1971. The pageant was truly an event to be remembered by all who were involved in helping to make it excitingly successful.

The candid pictures represent just a small number of those who sacrificed their time to make the 1971 Career Day a success.

April 27 brought many professionals to L.H.S. in hopes of helping students determine their desired careers. Various occupations were presented to the students who usually could attend three different sessions of their choice. The sessions varied from medicine to the F.B.I. and from telephone operators to beauticians. The students owe many thanks to the Guidance department; after all, the department was kind enough to get them out of class for two and a half hours.

May 6th proved to be a grand evening for the coronation of the new "Queen of May". The subjects, L.H.S. mothers and daughters, all arrived promptly, attired to fete the new queen. Helen Braden, the reigning queen, arrived to crown her new successor. Who would it be? Would it be the long haired beauty Margaret Tarne, the lovely Marsha Truchan, the vivacious Janet Coates, the enchanting Sue Flewellen, or the loud (due to her cheerleading experience) Susie Echterling? Yes, You guessed it, the loud one won! Besides having trouble keeping her banner on her shoulder and the crown on her head, Susie reigned beautifully over the tea, "Alice in Fashionland". Many new and beautiful fashions made by the girls in the Home Ec. Department, were shown to the queen and the mothers and daughters. The night was concluded with punch, cookies, a grateful queen, and a big congratulations to the Home Ec. Department for arranging such a lovely evening.

juniors present '71 with "we've only ju

The prom this year was similar to the title of the movie, "Lovers and Other Strangers." The strangers were really our classmates in disguise. The prom was a test to see if you recognized your classmates by their clothes or by their appearance. It was very different seeing everyone dressed in long gowns and tuxes. Quite a change from the usual grubby jeans and Tee-shirt, for sure!

The lovers and the strangers all enjoyed the prom. It was a time of happiness and in some cases, love. The music was good, just the right kind for a prom. The "Gremlins" played a few fast dances to wake up the bored couples, and break up the affectionate ones.

May 15th was a very good night. Hopefully everyone will remember it as the beginning of many good times to come. It is true, we have only just begun . . . to live, to love, and to enjoy.

The post prom party at Lake Prairie kept the couples going for another four hours after the prom ended. The band "Ore" was the mother's invention (Get it?), and it more than met their purpose of keeping the couples awake. The music was loud, quite a difference from the quiet, slow music of the prom. The couples were more at ease and more comfortable as many had changed clothes before coming to the post prom. The chicken, pizza, and pop filled the empty stomachs and eased the nerves. Door prizes were raffled off and many lucky prom couples arrived home with more than expected. When the clock struck four, the couples sleepily left to meet the dawning of a new day.

It was the twentieth of May, the night before Grub Day, and in the gym the seniors were nestled all snug in their chairs while visions of awards danced in their heads. Mom in her new dress and Dad in his suit had just settled down to see who would get the loot. When up on the speakers' platform there arose such a clatter, they looked up from their programs to see what was the matter. The awards were presented to all those deserving and Jim got a truckload leaving all others dreaming. Then it was over and time to go home. As we drove out of sight we heard everyone exclaim, "See you on Grub Day and to all a good night."

we came as a class

Graduation Day, May 30, 1971, finally came to those who had anxiously been waiting for its arrival. When it came, mixed emotions came, too. The graduates were happy and relieved to have that diploma in their hands, yet sad to leave their familiar world and friends. The parents were very proud of their child. They were happy to see their child graduate, but sad to know he would soon leave home.

What will happen to these 1971 graduates? Will they be remembered by their classmates, or forgotten as time goes on. Will they be happy, a success, a failure? Is one of the class a future president? Lowell has given them the best possible chance to be a success, it now all depends on the graduate himself.

There is a song that pretty well sums up what graduation day was for the "ex-Seniors;" "It was a time of joy, A time of tears, A time to be remembered through the years." Graduation Day.

leadership honor service character

The purpose of the National Honor Society is to recognize outstanding scholarship abilities and accomplishments in the students of Lowell High School. To be considered for membership, a student must have a grade average of at least a B. Teachers then rate potential members on the qualities of character, leadership, and service. Activities of the Society during the year are limited to the induction ceremony and other projects.

Membership in this organization is a major asset that helps a student enter the college of his choice, and later on, may even open job opportunities for him.

The Student Council began a new year with many varied projects. As a service to the community, money was collected by the members for the March of Dimes, and in place of a Christmas Dance, the council sponsored a Valentine's Dance. A student exchange program was also conducted with various schools in the area.

In an attempt to bring the Student Council and the students closer, members went to homerooms and listened to any suggestions that students might have had for school improvements. Criticism also came with the many suggestions. However, it is hoped that the Student Council was able to cope with the changing situations to bring about a better understanding between the students and the administration.

If one of our many visitors should be in the bandroom at the beginning of the mod, he would see students fitting together shiny pieces of pipe. Plumbers? Hardly! This is the Lowell High School Band.

Merely putting these pieces together does not make a band. The hard work and determination of the members is the key to the band's successful year. The results of this hard work were evident not only in the band's marked improvement, but there were more entries from Lowell in the District and State Contests than preceding years.

The band this year is mainly made up of Freshmen. These members have learned that the band is a serious organization and the loafers were left behind from the start.

The band has improved a lot this year, but the members are not content to stop here. Expect great things from the Lowell High School Band in the very near future, because these people are not kidding around.

The student body of Lowell High school and their families, once again witnessed and appreciated the activities of the Sunshine Club. True to their purpose of brightening a stay in the hospital or easing the grief of death, the Sunshine Club sent numerous "get-well cards" and potted plants to the families. The money for the plants and flowers comes from the profits of the Club's annual dance. This year the dance, which featured a Valparaiso band, was extremely successful, and provided the club with the money it needed for future projects. The Sunshine Club also had the responsibility of the hectic coat check at the home basketball games. The money from these activities went to sponsor a young Indian boy through school.

A new style was acquired by the choir for their many presentations during the school year. They sang at the annual Christmas Concert, where they were accompanied by the LHS band, and participated in the all-school play "A Christmas Carol." For their spring musical, the choir presented "Once Upon a Mattress."

Participation in the District Contest resulted in some LHS entries at State Contest. Nelson Schoon, Debbie Williams, Dean Hoover, and Linda Peterson received medals at the State Contest. These state winners are a reflection of the dedication and determination of all the choir members.

small in size but lots of lung power

Nine interested students are members of the Glee Club for the 1970-71 school year. These students are mostly underclassmen interested in learning the basic fundamentals of music. The club gives the student the opportunity to perfect their singing voices and gives them the opportunity to later join the major choir.

In singing a variety of songs, the members learn which songs they enjoy performing and they are given the chance to improve their singing capabilities. Although the group is small in number, they can benefit from the direct and personal attention of their instructor, Mr. Frederick.

thespians are always in the act

The Thespian Society began its 1970-71 year by sponsoring the All-School Play "The Mousetrap" on Nov. 22, 1970. The Society increased its ranks with the various young actors and actresses that made their debut in "Mousetrap." The Thespians entertained the children of Shelby and Center schools with "A Halloween Happening" and, along with the choir, sponsored the Christmas Musical, "A Christmas Carol" on Dec. 22-24. The Thespians' annual 3 One-Act plays on March 25-26, were exclusively Thespian cast. "Minor Miracle" was an all male cast and "When Men Are Scarce" was entirely female. The last one-act was the faculty's powerful drama(?), "The Laugh In The Dark." Spring initiations were held for members shortly after the one-acts and 15 new members were inducted. The Thespians concluded the year with a travelling children's play.

During the 1970-71 school year, the Art Guild put their artistic talents to work through service to the high school and the community. One of their activities was to show student work in the South Commons showcase and on the walls around the area of the art room. The Art Guild also made decorations for the Christmas tree in the South Commons, painted a Christmas mural for the cafeteria, and created small gifts for the local nursing home. The club also helped other organizations with art work and lettering. As always the Spring Art exhibit and a community exhibit were planned for the display of area work. Through the efforts of the Art Guild, the school has develeped an appreciation of art, and an awareness of student talent.

The purpose of the French Club of Lowell High School is to provide the necessary link between the classroom learning and the French culture. The French Club is devoted to helping the student understand the French way of life. Anyone who wishes to belong to this club may do so, as there is no requirement of understanding the French language. The French Club has had an active year in that they decorated a car for the Homecoming parade entitled, "Burn, baby, Burn." The club also decorated the Library commons for the Christmas holidays and held a dance during the basketball season.

The Spanish Club has had an important addition to its membership in that Mrs. Smith became the new sponsor. Under her and the officers' leadership, the Club was able to get off to a new start the second semester.

Mr. Fredericks, Latin Club advisor.

The Latin Club is an organization designed for the students enrolled in Latin as well as for the "retired" Latin students who wish to continue their membership. The club discusses the history, culture, and customs of the ancient and once glorious Roman Empire. Club activities this year included a Roman banquet where the participants wore togas and other traditional costumes of the Roman times. Another activity was a field trip to the Chicago Museum of Natural History where ancient artifacts were on display. Under the able direction of Mr. Fredericks, the club members learned of the Latin influences on today's society.

busy year for the girl's in O.E.A.

A number of students are heard to ask, "What's O.E.A.?" after hearing the morning announcements. O.E.A. stands for Office Education Association and is a group of girls interested in the business and secretarial fields. In spite of not being well known, the girls have been very active. Candles, flowers, and stationery were sold, parties were held for the nursing home, and flowers were sent to the secretaries and teachers aides at Christmas time. The club entered in the state and regional contests. Bev Daun won in the regional contests and Debbie Gagne won in the regional bookkeeping contest and went on to the state contest. The girls of O.E.A. have performed many valuable services to the people of the community, and have benefitted from their work in many ways.

With needle and thread in their hands and a smudge of flour on their noses, the members of the Home Ec. Club are learning to be better homemakers while aiding in the betterment of our community. In our mechanized, computerized society, the art of knitting is rapidly becoming extinct. To help preserve this vanishing characteristic of homemakers, the Home Ec. Club offered a special course in knitting to all interested high school girls.

Traditionally, the Mother's Tea is presented each spring by the Home Ec. Club, this year proved to be no exception. The club members worked very hard on fund raising campaigns in order to make "Alice in Fashionland" a memorable evening for the mothers and daughters of L.H.S.

gaa proves whatever guys can do girls can do

Girls! Girls! Girls! If one should happen to come to a G.A.A. meeting this would be all he would find. But that's not so bad, huh guys? This organization is exclusive to the girls who are interested in athletics. The member may participate in such competition as volleyball, basketball, swimming, gymnastics, or the competition of trying to get the gym floor from the boys and their coaches.

The G.A.A. sponsored various teams this year who were sometimes victorious and sometimes . . . The volleyball team had a .500 average the "71" year. Our swimming team had a fabulous record of 3 wins and 1 loss, and lets say our gymnastics team gained valuable experience. Congratulations is in order for these L.H.S. girls' teams and the organization as a whole.

Math and Science Officers: Janet Jones, President; Pat Black, Vice President; Theresa Babcock, Secretary-Treasurer.

The members of the Math and Science Club, under the leadership of Janet Jones, participated in many activities designed to enlighten the student on various areas of mathematics and science not normally studied in high school. The Math and Science Club's activities, such as a field trip to a planetarium, guest speakers, and science oriented movies were also open to other science students and the public. Mr. Ouwenga and Mr. Beeching, representing the mathematics and science fields, were the club's sponsors. They were always available to advise and encourage the Math and Science Club members as they pursued their interests.

f.t.a. organizes "teacher for a day"

The Future Teachers of America Organization of Lowell received their charter this year and became a member of the national organization. The club's main objective is to acquaint the interested students with the teaching profession. It is hard to believe that somebody would actually want to become a teacher!

Under the leadership of president Janet Jones, the club was very active during the year. Panel discussions and guest speakers were planned and a trip to Indiana University was taken to acquaint the members with a college campus.

One of the highlights of the F.T.A.'s year was the "teacher for a day" activity. This day consisted of F.T.A. members and other interested students taking over a teacher's classes.

If you see a haggard student walk through the doors of the high school anytime during the day, do not be alarmed; most likely, this student is coming back from a few hours of cadet teaching. The cadet teacher is a senior who, in his free time, helps a teacher in one of the area schools. One cadet teacher's job may be that of wiping the tears of a homesick kindergartener while another's may be outsmarting the "know-it-all's" in the upper grades.

The cadet teacher is graded every six weeks on his appearance, punctuality, willingness, courtesy, patience, and other factors. The teaching usually begins the second semester with the student receiving credit for his work. The cadet works with the teacher doing anything that is asked of him. Anyone who is planning on entering the teaching profession is highly advised to be a cadet teacher. It offers valuable experience and it's fun.

Though the Pep Club members, at the games, did not equal the number of girls in this picture, the loyal fans that did prove to be true members made-up for the many other members that did not participate. These yelling, screaming girls backed the L.H.S. teams through victories and defeats.

A new organization, the B.C.B. (Boys Cheer Block), cannot go without mention. This cheer block, even though the cheers were sometimes questionable, backed the teams with a new enthusiasm that Lowell has never seen before. While the combined efforts of both the boys and girls cheer blocks, they proved to be the "Devils that roared".

F.F.A., this year, proved to Lowell High that there is more to a farmer's life than what meets the eye. The club was very active visiting livestock shows and working on community projects. Last summer, this year's freshman attended a Greenhand Orientation program at Camp Limberlost near Lake Oliver. The Farm Progress Show, the International Livestock Show, and the livestock and dairy farms at Purdue University were just a few other places visited by this year's F.F.A. members.

The club shared their knowledge of farming and the soil by working on a conservation project of reseeding the hill behind Oak Hill Elementary School. The little building that appeared over night near the high school parking lot is also one of the club's creations. This little building is commonly known as "Little's little greenhouse". In conclusion, as the old saying goes, a business man works from nine to five but a farmer's work makes the country thrive.

The newspaper staff started the year by renaming their bi-weekly production the Devil's Tongue. Along with its new name, the Devil's Tongue staff also created a new image. While the paper still contained the basic items as sports news and the slander column, the paper became much more the student's than in past years. The student body was encouraged to express their opinions and views on the important issues of Lowell High. The response to this opportunity was surprisingly good with rebuttals to the editorials, rebuttals to the rebuttals and so on down the line. Spirited, controversial, and full of new ideas, the Devil's Tongue was definitely the voice of the students of Lowell High.

from lowellette to devil's tongue

input: headaches, shattered nerves, sweat, pop bottles, and brains output: this!!!

If a student or teacher should wander through the "C" mezzanine area, supposedly reserved for working on the Lowellian, he might see a bunch of crazy nuts led by one super cocoa nut. These "nuts" appear to be goofing off, but in reality, they are racking their brains for new and different ideas for the yearbook.

Three days a week, long hard hours are spent over a bottle of pop working to meet the fast approaching deadline. Inspite of Mr. Hunt's screams, and our fearless leader's shattered nerves, the Lowellian staff will no longer be a group after graduation, because it will have a grand total of three members returning next year. Perhaps this is better for Lowell High, but anyone who is interested in working next year is encouraged by every member of this year's staff, for it is a lot of fun.

Scribblings is a name given to the literary works of the Lowell High School students which are compiled into one pamphlet that states the literary accomplishments of the school body. Whew! Now that the formalities are over, this year's Scribblings has much more to offer than in previous years, which means there has been a lot more work on the staff's part. Due to their diligent work, Scribblings has increased in size. Its sponsor, Mrs. Hazel Nichols, has again this year shown her interest and devotion to this compilment by freely and willingly giving of her time and talent as an English teacher for the enlargement and increased effectiveness of the Scribblings. 1971's Scribblings proved to be as thought provoking to the reader as it was to the author at its time of creation.

In Memory of . . . Lee, Tom, John, Tom

When I must leave you for a little while—Please do not grieve and shed wild tears
And hug your sorrow to you through the years,

But start out bravely
with a gallant smile;
And for my sake and in my name
Live on and do all things the same,
Feed not your loneliness
on empty days,

But fill each waking hour
in useful ways, Reach out your hand
in comfort and in cheer . . .

Helen Steiner Rice

i am an individual

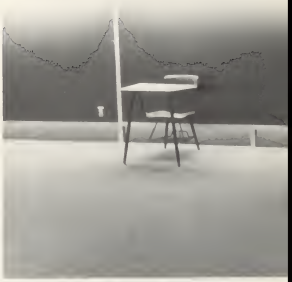

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music he hears, however measured or far away.

Thoreau

I am only one, but I am one. I can't do everything, but I can do something.

Edward Hale

It is the Time of Going Away.
